

A review of the officer's Central Personnel Index (CPI) revealed the following:

1. On October 12, 2010, John Uske had a substantiated departmental investigation for issuing fictitious summonses or for failing to take proper police action if he issued real summonses and for failing to make proper notations in his memobook. He was suspended for thirty days, forfeited 30 vacation days and was placed on dismissal probation for one year.
2. On November 25, 2011, a departmental investigation found that he was unprepared for traffic court in that he failed to bring his memobook and he was issued a schedule "B" command discipline.
3. On April 4, 2014, a departmental investigation found that his memobook was incomplete. No disciplinary action is noted for that event.

A review of the officer's CCRB history revealed the following:

1. On September 15, 2007, John Uske had a substantiated CCRB complaint for an improper summons and was given formalized training.
