Summary of Complaint

After an argument with a store worker, § 87(2)(b) was arrested by Officer Joseph Bonner. He twisted her arms, swung her around, and threw her against the wall. § 87(2)(b) was taken to the Midtown South Precinct. When attempting to fingerprint her, Officer Bonner threw § 87(2)(b) against the walls and jail gates.

§ 87(2)(b) was then taken to central booking to be refingerprinted. The two Officers who escorted her there pushed and shoved § 87(2)(b) when she requested medical attention. They tried to discourage her from seeking medical treatment, and her request was ultimately denied.

After spending time in a holding cell, an unidentified sergeant threw her to the floor, twisted her arms, and applied pressure to the back of her neck when she refused fingerprinting. Another unidentified Officer stomped on her foot and grabbed her hand in an attempt to gain compliance and fingerprint her. He was unsuccessful, and she was later sent to Riker’s Island without having been fingerprinted.

Results of Investigation

§ 87(2)(b) complaint was received by mail the day after her release from Riker’s Island. The only point of contact given was her Riker’s address. A letter was sent the address on her arrest report, which is the same address Riker’s Island has on record, and returned undelivered by the post office. Furthermore, eight residents of § 87(2)(b) Manhattan were contacted. None of them have ever heard of § 87(2)(b), and she does not have a phone number listed.

Despite being arrested, § 87(2)(b) has no NYSID number, because she was never successfully fingerprinted. There is no available record of her at parole, probation, or the DMV.

Conclusions and Recommendations
