With reference to the above-mentioned case, and pursuant to our continuing obligations, the People make the following disclosure: during trial preparation with Detective James Casale, he indicated that during the time he has been employed by the New York City Police Department, he believed that he had been named as a defendant or co-defendant in a federal civil lawsuit while he was a police officer in the 120 Precinct. However, because his involvement in the lawsuit was limited to only receiving notice of the claim from the Law Department of the City of New York, Det. Casale had no substantive knowledge about either the status of the lawsuit, or the specific allegations contained in complaint. During the discussion, Det. Casale indicated that he had not been deposed in any civil lawsuit, nor had he given trial testimony in any civil lawsuit.

As a result of the conversation with the officer, on October 21, 2015, the People performed a simple name search of the Public Access to Court Electronic Records ["PACER"] website, and found the following cases which list "James Casale" as a civil defendant, together with the "City of New York", in cases in the Eastern or Southern Districts of New York:

1. Taylor v. City of New York, 12CV5634 (SLT) - settled in 2013 for an undisclosed amount, with stipulation of settlement filed ending litigation in the Eastern District of New York.
