With reference to the above-mentioned case, and pursuant to our continuing obligations, the People make the following disclosures:

The People are aware that during the time Police Officer Jason Boreman has been employed by the New York City Police Department a review of the officer's Central Personnel Index (CPI) revealed the following:

1. In January 2016, an allegation against the officer was substantiated for "computer misuse."
2. In December 2016, the officer, while off duty, he attempted to access the threat assessment protection unit data base without permission, authority or department necessity, and as a result forfeited one vacation day and was issued a "B" command discipline.
3. In August 2018, an allegation against the officer was substantiated for "fail to properly search a department vehicle," and "found property in a department vehicle," and as a result the officer received an "A" command discipline.

The People reserve the right to move in limine to preclude reference to this information, or otherwise to object to its use or introduction into evidence during trial.

Should you wish to discuss this matter, please do not hesitate to call me at [REDACTED] [REDACTED] Ext.] during office hours.

Sincerely,
