DISCLOSURE ADVISORY

For the person named above, whom the People may call as a witness, please be advised as follows.

1. The New York City Police Department (NYPD) has deemed substantiated an allegation from March 3, 2008, that Tamara Williams had failed to notify the NYPD Employee Management Division of updated personal information.
2. NYPD has deemed substantiated an allegation that on July 29, 2009, Tamara Williams improperly processed evidence, consisting of miscellaneous property retrieved during an investigation conducted at a pawnshop, in that she failed to invoice the property in accordance with department guidelines and failed to make accurate and complete activity log entries regarding the incident.
3. NYPD has deemed substantiated for Tamara Williams an allegation from August 6, 2009, of memobook incomplete.
4. NYPD has deemed substantiated allegations that on August 7, 2011, Tamara Williams failed to properly safeguard her Smith & Wesson firearm and her identification card, and failed to notify the NYPD Internal Affairs Bureau: A woman reported to NYPD that a man was staying at the residence of Tamara Williams, and that while Tamara Williams was absent from the residence, the man texted the woman a photograph of a hand holding a Smith & Wesson firearm and a message threatening to hurt himself. NYPD also substantiated an allegation of abuse of sick leave in that on November 29, 2011, Tamara Williams was wrongfully and without just cause absent from her residence without permission of her district surgeon and/or the Medical Division Sick Desk supervisor. The charges and specifications arising from these substantiated allegations were dismissed upon pleas by the officer and the imposition of a Command Discipline with the forfeiture of five vacation days.
5. Tamara Williams is a named defendant in the civil action Leslie Cordon v. the City of New York et al., 11CV6343, filed in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, involving an incident that occurred on May 15, 2012.
